Crepons, Suit—As well as Skirts and ings and Silks, Suits Ready Made.

These departments, made famous during the past years on account of their immensity and completeness, will be no less attractive this spring, and every lady will find it much to their advantage to look through them whether you purchase or not.

In this connection come the SPRING WRAPS, leading with the Dainty Capes in Silk, Lace, Chiffon and Cloth, faced in Silk and ornamented with rich jet or applique. These are little wonders in their line for such low prices.

PARENTS having daughters to be confirmed during the coming season are specially invited to see our lines of materials suitable for outfits. Cambric and Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, Lawns, Percales, Royal Batiste and Linens. Some special values.

TWO SLICK SWINDLERS

Raison Pretty Good Sum of Money in Wheeling.

ONE OF THEM IS BEHIND THE BARS.

His Confession, and Says He Had to Raise Money in Some Way—Solicited for a Steel Workers' Association Which Does Not Exist.

Yesterday Officer Ed Michaels arrested a man who with a companion had raised a pretty good sum of money in Wheeling by dishonest means. Both men were large, heavily built fellows, apparently under forty years of age, and looked enough alike to be brothers. They came to Wheeling on Tuesday, and stopped at the Farmers' Home, on the second ward market square. They paid a week's board in advance, and left a valise and a bundle in their room. They claimed to be about to canvas the town.

They had not been here long until they began to call on well known people, having a small book in their possession, and claiming to be soliciting aid for the Steel Workers' Beneficial Organization, an organization which steel workers here say has no existence.

Heading their list of subscribers was George E. Stifel for $5 and Henry Schmulbach for $10. Both names were stamped on with rubber letters, but it develops that neither subscription was genuine. They got $10 in cash from Mr. Anton Roymann and a check for $5 from S. S. Bloch, which they succeeded in getting cashed before they were found out. On their list were also a number of other subscribers, but just how many were genuine and how many bogus cannot yet be told. At any rate, however, they must have secured quite a sum of money in all.

Then they came to grief. Intelligence of their operations reached Chief of Police Bennett, and he was informed that there was reason to believe the men were crooked. About noon yesterday the police were notified to look out for them, and later in the afternoon Officer Michaels cornered the two men in a Market street saloon. One went out the back way, while the other went into Hanks's cigar store and tried to hold the door shut, but Michaels captured him. He tried to resist, but a discreet application of the nippers brought him to the lockup like a lamb led to slaughter.

He at first denied his guilt, but when confronted by Mr. Bloch and others whom he had approached, he owned up. He gave his name as Angelus, and said his brother, who was with him, forged the name of the alleged secretary of the alleged society to the check given them by Mr. Bloch, but that he had drawn the money. He had no money and no subscription book, and it is probable his companion was the more dangerous swindler.

The men claimed to be steel workers from Harrisburg, Pa. The one who was locked up said they were brothers, and neither had worked for a long time, and they had to raise money somehow to support their families.

The satchel and bundle the two men left at the Farmers' Home were secured by the police last night, and evidence was found in them that the men were "the slickest of the slick." They had two outfits of rubber type, of different sizes. The names of Geo. E. Stifel & Co. and Schmulbach Brewing Company were found in the stamps, in two different types, just as they appeared in the book on which the subscriptions were received by the men. They even had a seal of the association which does not exist. The man who was arrested says they only got $17 here, and "blow it all in." This was after he explained that he "had to do something for his starving family."

MARTIN'S FERRY DEMOCRATS
Met in Convention Last Evening and Selected a City Ticket.

The "unterrified" Democrats of Martin's Ferry met in large numbers at Scheeble's hall last evening to nominate a city ticket to be voted for at the approaching spring election. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Clark Anderson and a permanent organization was effected by the selection of Mr. W. B. Francis chairman and Louis Rothermund secretary.

W. T. Dixon was nominated for city solicitor; George Spence, water works trustee; and John Gabe, cemetery trustee.

The following were selected candidates for council: First ward, Richard Stewart; Second, Patrick Dougherty; Third, L. Rothermund.

Assessors—First ward, Haymon Paxson; Second, George Rizer; Third, Jacob Arn.

A committee composed of Messrs. George Cook, Louis Rothermund and Charles Messersmith was appointed to select candidates for the board of education.

A New Council Organized.

The second council, Kilian, was organized in the basement of the St. Alphonsus church last evening, with a good charter list. The following officers were elected and installed by the deputy supreme chancellor: President, John T. Emig; vice president, Louis Bonenberger; orator, John M. Emmerth; chancellor, Michael Kirchner; secretary, William J. Nolte; collector, Joseph Yahn; treasurer, John Heilmeyer; marshal, Ferd Diedenbach; guard, Rudolf Hoffmann; trustees, L. Bonenberger, M. Kirchner, J. M. Emmerth.

Mr. Phillips was assisted in the installation by members of Mountain State Council, and an enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

More March Weather.

Yesterday there was rain and sunshine—more of the former than the latter—and the mercury ranged from 60 down to 40. The government signal flags indicated a cold wave last night, and it was pretty well realized, although the temperature did not reach the freezing point. Murky air, rain and muddy streets made it very unpleasant to be out, and business was very dull last night.

Guaranteed Cure.
